

I'm not robot!

What cities are in multiple states. What cities are on the same latitude as Melbourne. Where are most major cities in Australia located. What cities are in more than one state.

Australia's labeling map reveals that it is recognized not only as a country, but also as a great island. The total number occupied by this country is equivalent to approximately 7,692 million square kilometers. Although this is a scarce five percent of the global terrestrial mass, Australia is considered the sixth largest country in the world. This is after the United States, China, Canada and Russia. The maritime borders of Australia include New Caledonia in France, Solomon Islands, Papua New Guinea, New Zealand, Indonesia and Eastern Timor. The general geographical characteristics of the PAI indicate that there are three different physiographic regions. From this to the west, it is possible to visualize the interior lowlands, also known as central lowlands, and the highlands of Eastern Australia. The estimated population of Australia is equivalent to 25,499,884 people, during 2020. The population of Australia is equivalent to 0.33% of the total global population. Some of the long rivers that flow through the country, include Murray River, Murrumbidgee River and Darling River. The long and continuous river system is the Río Murray. According to the available census data, around 52.1% of Australians classified as Christians. Of this, about 22.66% of people follow the Catholic religion, while around 13.3% of people are Anglicans. The remaining 8.2% of the Australians follow non-Christian religions. Australia marked map with states while looking at Australia's labeling map with states, you can see that Commonwealth of Australia comprises six states and several territories. Consequently, the states and territories of the Australian continent include the state of New South Wales with its capital city such as Sydney, Darwin is the capital of the state of the northern territory, Brisbane is the capital of Queensland, Hobart is the capital of Tasmania, Melbourne is the capital of the state of Victoria. Perth is the capital of Western Australia. Australia's marked map with cities that are mapped to Australia's staged map with cities, the main cities of the country, include Adelaide, Brisbane, Canberra, Darwin, Hobart, Tasmania, Melbourne, Perth and Sydney. The Australian Capital Territory (A.C.T.) is the capital of the Australian Capital Territory in the south-west of Sydney. The main attractions of the city include the buildings of Parliament, which is built within the parliamentary triangle. Canberra is famous for festivals, like the wonderful Floriade festival. This city is regarded as the celebration of the city of many flowers in the spring season. Canberra is Australia's political center and is one of the country's most affordable cities. It is also recognized as the most educated city in Australia and offers campus accommodation to students. Mobile version: the main cities of Australia include Sydney, Melbourne, Brisbane, Perth, Adelaide, Cairns, Darwin and Canberra, the capital. Rank GCCSA/SUA State/Territory Population (2015) 1 Sydney New South Wales 4,920,970 2 Melbourne Victoria 4,529,496 3 Brisbane Queensland 2,308,720 4 Perth Western Australia 2,039,193 5 Adelaide South Australia 1,316,779 6 Gold Coast Tweed Heads Maitland New South Wales 1,212,211 7 Darwin Northern Territory 142,259 8 Toowoomba Queensland 114,622 9 Ballarat Victoria 99,841 10 Bendigo Victoria 92,888 11 Albury-Wodonga New South Wales/Victoria 88,949 20 Launceston Tasmania 86,633 21 31 Port Macquarie New South Wales 45,341 32 Tamworth New South Wales 42,255 cities in Australia The main cities of Australia include Sydney, Melbourne, Brisbane, Perth, Adelaide, Cairns, Darwin and Canberra, the capital of the nation. Australia comprises six states and two continental territories: the states are New South Wales, Queensland, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia. Australia's continental territories are the territory of the Australian capital and the Northern Territory. The capital of Australia is Canberra, which is located in the Australian Capital Territory in south-east Australia. Canberra has a population of approximately 381,488, making it the largest inner city in the country. At the national level, Canberra is the eighth largest city in the country, and covers an area of 314 square miles (814 square kilometers). The most populous and world-renowned city in Australia is Sydney, which is the capital of New South Wales. Sydney covers an area of 4,775.2 square miles (12,367.7 square kilometers), and is home to almost 5.07 million people, starting in 2017. Sydney is also the prime minister and general governor of the second official seat of Australia. Sydney ranks as one of the best cities to live in, according to the Mercer Quality of Living Survey that ranked it tenth-best among all the cities of the world, regarding the quality of living. Melbourne, the capital of Victoria, is the second most populous city in Australia, with a population of 4.67 million, as of (2016) with growth rate of 2.98%. The area of Melbourne is about 3,857.4 square miles (9,990 square kilometers), and it is called the Garden City. Melbourne is often considered the cultural capital of Australia, as it houses the headquarters of the country's film and television industry, and major sports and arts centers. Brisbane is Queensland's capital, and is the third most populous city in Australia with a population of 2.2 million people. Brisbane covers an area of 6,110.5 square miles (15,826 square kilometers). Established on May 13th, 1835, it is one of the oldest cities of Australia. Some of the popular sporting events that have been held in the city are the 1982 Commonwealth Games, the Goodwill Games in 2001, and the 2014 G-20 summit. Perth is situated in Western Australia, and is the largest city and capital of the state. Perth has a population of 2.04 million people living in its metropolitan area, which covers 2,079 square miles (5,386 square kilometers). In 2016, The Economist Intelligence list, ranked Perth as the seventh most livable city in the world. The fifth largest city in Australia is Adelaide, the South Australian capital. Adelaide's population numbers about 1.34 million as of (2016) with growth rate of 1.82%, and it has an area of 705 square miles (1,827 square kilometers). Since the mid-19th century, Adelaide has been known as the City of Churches. Some of the attractions of the city include: Adelaide Botanic Garden, Adelaide Central Market, North Terrace, Bonython Park and Elder Park to name some. Cairns in Queensland, and Darwin, the capital of the Northern Territory are some other major cities in Australia. This huge country is home to a plethora of fantastic cities that are waiting to be explored. While the world's famous cities like Sydney and Melbourne often take the light, Australia's less-known cities have a lot of things to see and do and are underestimated in comparison. With beautiful beaches, vibrant cultural scenes and amazing natural views never far away, get off the beaten path and discover a new side of Australia. Map of cities in Australia © OpenStreet Map © MapTiler © Touroopia 15. Wollongong [SEE MAP] | olquin photograph / Flickr Just eighty kilometers south of Sydney is the city of Wollongong. Bordering two fantastic beaches, the city has some great surf spots in and around the area, and although not particularly attractive, it has a beautiful setting in the shape of the green Illawarra Escarpment. Due to their university students, there is a lively feel about the place and a series of good restaurants and bars to visit. 14. Launceston [SEE MAP] | Advo / Dreamstime Located on the banks of the River Tamar, Launceston is the second largest city in the state of Tasmania, and its residents are fierce but friendly rivals with the capital city of Hobart. Despite its small stature, the city has a beautiful colonial architecture and an animated scene of arts and food. While it's pretty, the main attraction is the stunning cataract throat, which has some intriguing paths for you to explore. The vineyards of the Tamar Valley are also worth visiting, as well as the Ben Lomond National Park, not much further geelong [see MAP] | r. stelmachowicz / dreamstime lying just 70 kilometers away from Melbourne, the heart of geelong centered around the waterfront at Corio Bay, and it is here that visitors can find some quality restaurants and shops. In truth, the city is not the greatest to look at; it used to be a center of industry and as such, its urban sprawl is decidedly unappealing. With a passionate fan-base however, Geelong is the perfect place to go and watch an Aussie rules football match. Many people use the city as a stop off on the way to exploring the Great Ocean Road and the Bellarine Peninsula. 12. Newcastle [SEE MAP] | Tim J Keegan / Flickr Australia's second-oldest city is a charming and laidback place which is actually pretty cool to visit. Located on the coast in New South Wales, Newcastle has some interesting historical architecture, plenty of great surf spots and, of course, a bounty of beautiful beaches for visitors to enjoy. All of this masks the fact that the city was built on the coal industry, and is still the largest exporter of this ore in the world. Newcastle is a great base from which to explore the surrounding areas including mountains, expansive beaches, and the nearby vineyards in Hunter Valley. 11. Alice Springs [SEE MAP] | Despite its remote location in the center of Australia, 1500-kilometers from the nearest city, Alice Springs is well worth a visit. Although it may take you a bit of time and effort to reach this small town, the scenic journey is half the attraction. There is not a great deal of interest in the town itself apart from the museums and Aboriginal art galleries but its setting in the outback along with access to such stupendous sights as Uluru/Ayers Rock and Kata Tjuta/the Olgas make it worth the effort. Situated on the banks of the Todd River, Alice Springs is the perfect gateway to the many incredible landscapes and beautiful scenery that lie all around it. 10. Gold Coast [SEE MAP] | Kerrie Brailsford / Flickr A popular destination among tourists and locals alike, Gold Coast is the spectacular combination of sun, sea and surf. The apartment blocks the tower above the almost endless variety of beaches of the city, with surfers Paradise being the most popular of all of them. A beautiful place to visit, the sun is almost guaranteed here. Together with the animated and raucous party scene, a good moment is guaranteed on the Costa Dorada. In addition to all this, there are a variety of parks of increasing attractions, which could easily pass two or three days exploring. 9. Hobart [See Map] with a bustling maritime walk full of things to see and do, a beautiful mountain that forms a background telon of the city, and the dark blue of the ocean that surrounds the shore, Hobart is definitely a picturesque place to visit. The city more south of the country, the remote location

